

The Editor: Our Mayor has given us many suggestions on how to beautify our city for the coming Centennial but no mention was made of the garbage and trash which is allowed to blow around every windy day.

We can paint our fences and trim our hedges, but the next windy day they are piled up with somebody's garbage.

Why not have the lanes inspected and insist on approved garbage containers and stands, so that they cannot be upset by large dogs or the wind.

We have bylaws governing this, but they need to be enforced and complaints should be followed up so that the inspectors are not ignored.

An acquaintance of mine living in U.S. told me that his town used to be as bad as Regina regarding litter bugs, but they started a campaign to train the young children and now the children are checking their parents, and this town is now free of litter and broken bottles. A great improvement could be made in the situation here if the young generation were trained to use the litter containers. In due time they would be teaching their children and we would then, by degrees, have a clean city.

I note from your paper that Athens is hiring 450 more street cleaners for the tourist season. Maybe they are expecting some tourists from Regina!
